Play is essential to development because it contributes to the cognitive, physical, social, and emotional well-being of children and youth. Play also offers an ideal opportunity for parents to engage fully with their children. Despite the benefits derived from play for both children and parents, time for free play has been markedly reduced for some children.

For beginners you can simplify this activity by starting with just half a sheet of flowers. This gives you just four different flower designs to begin with, rather than the same designs in different colours. Start by arranging one half of each flower on the table and encouraging your child to look for the matching halves.
