A limerick is a form of verse, almost always humorous and frequently rude, in five-line, predominantly anapestic meter with a strict rhyme scheme of AABBA, in which the first, second and fifth line rhyme, while the third and fourth lines are shorter and share a different rhyme. The following example is a limerick of unknown origin:

Treiman et al., Psycholinguistics, 3 and The umpire helped the child on third base as conveying distinct messages, although the sentences differ in just one small word. We know that He showed her baby the pictures and He showed her the baby pictures describe quite different events, even though the difference in word order is slight. We can even make some sense of Colorless green ideas sleep ...

However, if you are discussing, for example, the historical context in which the episode originally aired, you should cite the full date. Because you are specifying the date of airing, you would then use WB Television Network (rather than Mutant Enemy), because it was the network (rather than the production company) that aired the episode on the date you're citing.
