A solvent (from the Latin solvĀ•, "loosen, untie, solve") is a substance that dissolves a solute (a chemically distinct liquid, solid or gas), resulting in a solution. A solvent is usually a liquid but can also be a solid, a gas, or a supercritical fluid. The quantity of solute that can dissolve in a specific volume of solvent varies with temperature. ...

Deep eutectic solvents are systems formed from a eutectic mixture of Lewis or BrĀ•nsted acids and bases which can contain a variety of anionic and/or cationic species. They are classified as types of ionic solvents with special properties. They incorporate one or more compound in a mixture form, to give a eutectic with a melting point much lower than either of the individual components.
